THE BOODLE BOARD.

Ex-Alderman Fullgraf Tells the Story of its Fraud.

A GREAT SENSATION IN COURT

Each Man's Share Cut Down to $20 000 by the Mayor's Veto—Witness Pitilessly Cornered on the Cross-Examination

NEW YORK Nov 19 The trial of ex Alderman Arthur J McQuade indicted 'boodle' alderman was continued this morning before a crowded court room Nicol conducted the examination Ex Alderman Charles B Waite resumed the witness chair He acknowledged several visits to the office of the Broadway Surface Railway company and to seeing Maloney there Witness came to New York several times in August 1885 he being in New London Conn in business at the depot house at that time On August 29th of that year he was summoned to New York by telegraph

[illegible] Tracy here [illegible] to the reading of the telegram

Witness continued saying he went to the Brevoort House He met James Richmond Afterward he came down town and in passing through the court house to the city hall again met Richmond [illegible] One of them [illegible] (The paper was produced in court and identified by witness) This occurred August 30th Witness then went up to the aldermen's chamber Witness said the telegram was to notify him of the meeting He presided at the meeting of the board The mayor's veto message [illegible] was read and the bill passed over the veto The meeting was held with closed doors Except members of the board no one was present [illegible] a newspaper man Witness did not know whether McQuade was present or not or who drafted the resolution to pass the bill over the veto

Cross-examination elicited the fact that the resolutions were in type writing According to the result of a [illegible] consultation of aldermen the report of the railroad committee was prepared in the office of Scribner & Bright as was also the resolution in type writing

TESTIMONY OF EX ALDERMAN FULLGRAF

Ex Alderman Fullgraf was next called as a witness He affirmed that he had resided in New York and Brooklyn for thirty six years and had been in business twenty six years He is a bald headed man with a mustache and tuft of chin whiskers He sat with his eyes on the lawyers and his hands clasped in his lap Witness said the informal meeting was held in May 1884 after the board had adjourned Eight or nine members were present of which McQuade was one The subject was discussed and it was found that it was necessary to have thirteen votes to pass the bill It was agreed to meet in the offices of witness within a week This was done and the meeting held at Fullgraf's factory after business hours This was before the bill was passed Thirteen aldermen were present McQuade was one

Nicol asked who else were present.

Witness named from memory Kinney Sayles Waite McCabe Duffy and Jaehne McL[illegible] was chairman De Lacy was present It was agreed that the thirteen members present would hold together on any question that came before the board Nothing was said about the Broadway railroad It was agreed to meet again one week later at McLaughlin's house Witness attended the latter meeting and McLaughlin was made chairman again On Duffy's motion the first business was the question of the Broadway franchise It was said that other companies the cable road and others wanted the franchise Jaehne DeLacy and others spoke, saying that the Broadway Cable Road company had offered $750 000 for the franchise one half cash and one-half bonds Witness did not know to whom the money and stock was to go It was said that the surface road had offered $500,000 cash. Witness said the offer of the cable road was considered unreliable and the other was considered the best It was decided to accept the offer of the Broadway surface road by a unanimous vote Witness voted for it.

The next question discussed was who should be entrusted with the money Something was said about the amount. Twenty two thousand dollars was to go to each member One member thought the amount should be $25 000 each. It was said the lawyers had concluded to pay only $22 000 That amount was decided upon unanimously McQuade voted aye.

SELECTION OF A BOODLE HOLDER

Another meeting was held at McLaughlin's house when but twelve out of the thirteen were present The question discussed was to select a member to hold the money Witness thought that McCabe said Maloney might not be trusted with that large amount Duffy suggested Keenan and he was selected Delacy then said he wished to have the members present go to Keenan and assure him it was all right. Witness said the possibility of a veto was considered and in that case it was decided to leave the work of getting a two thirds vote to Maloney

After the veto another meeting was held at McLaughlin's house to discuss it As more votes were necessary it was decided unanimously to cut down each man's share to $20 000 Witness said he saw Maloney at his house August 29, and the latter brought witness a paper to sign There were several other names on the paper. Witness then recognized a paper as the one signed It was the call for the memorable meeting of August 30 Witness attended the secret meeting of August 30

McQuade and witness were both present at another meeting in McLaughlin's house October 13 There had been no money paid yet and this was the subject of discussion Witness received a part, $5000, before the election The final vote granting the franchise was taken December 5. Up to and after that date witness had received $18 000 Keenan paid it. Witness asked McQuade after December 5 if he had got his money and McQuade replied that it was 'all right'"

CROSS EXAMINATION.

This ended direct examination and a consultation of lawyers followed. The audience who had listened with deep interest using their hands as trumpets settled back in their seats to discuss the astounding testimony of the witness whose face was flushed and whose eyes had been cast down while giving evidence His voice at times had been almost inaudible

On cross examination witness said he had been engaged in manufacturing paper boxes for some years and was married thirty two years ago

When asked why he affirmed Fullgraf thought he was asked why he turned state's evidence He raised his right hand above his head as he replied 'I have done it because of remorse'

Witness' face had borne all the marks of mental agony and his voice had been husky and tremulous As he reached this point he broke down and stroking his hand over his beard he said, in a half whisper made audible by the perfect silence of the moment 'I don't know'

After a short pause the question was explained by the court. Witness stated that he always had affirmed, and that Newcombe was mistaken in saying that he had not affirmed before the senate investigation committee He would not tell a lie on affirmation to harm a man

A CONFESSED PERJURER

Newcombe read extracts from the examination of Fullgraf as a witness before the senate committee which were contradictory to his present testimony In one place Fullgraf had testified that he had not conversed with other aldermen on the subject of the Broadway railroad franchise bill. Other contradictions were noted by Newcombe who asked witness if his former evidence on those points was true or false Witness replied 'False'

Newcombe then asked witness if he had committed perjury before the senate committee

'I presume so' replied Fullgraf

'Then' mercilessly continued the lawyer 'you committed perjury to save yourself from punishment for bribery on that occasion did you not?'

Witness cast his eyes down His previous answers had been false but now the confessed bribe taker and perjurer answered 'Not at all' As more questions were given showing up his character in a bad light, witness assumed something of the air of one placed in a position where a fight was necessary and his face wore a look of defiance His voice grew stronger and he replied to succeeding questions about suspicious false testimony in a way to be heard easily throughout the court room

At 1 30 P M recess was taken

Ex Alderman Duffy was at the district attorney's [illegible] Fullgraf's action Fullgraf was taken out to [illegible] detectives

It is said that ex Alderman Charles B Miller has [illegible] of the boodle

[illegible] ON THE STAND

The [illegible] of the testimony before the senate committee which included the statement that Fullgraf knew nothing more about boodle than they did at Albany and Washington was read Fullgraf explained his evasive answer as meaning that Mr Niles the examiner who had been a member of the legislature at a time when boodle was flying there according to rumor knew what boodle meant well enough (Laughter) Witness denounced boodle as money obtained [illegible]

Again and again Lawyer Newcombe read Fullgraf's sworn denials of any knowledge of the transactions asking if they were true or false Witness each time acknowledged that he swore falsely before the senate committee [illegible] no bravado in the manner of witness He was down cast but when asked if he remembered calling on Almighty God to witness that he was truthful replied 'No, I do not remember It never happened.'

ANOTHER STATEMENT

The statement in his testimony before the commission that he was sorry he had been a member of the board of 1884 only because of stories started by newspapers that he would stick to the members of that board as long as they lived and that he considered there were as honest and pure men in the board as ever sat on God's footstool was read by Mr Newcombe

'I can say now' broke in Fullgraf, 'that I am sorry I was a member of that board'

'Did you refer to your own purity then'

'Yes sir I was and am now but for that one act'

Witness said he had never given away the boodle aldermen until his arrest for his alleged connection with the granting of the franchise to the Thirty fourth street road in 1884 He was then induced to make a general statement regarding the Broadway franchise by a promise of protection from prosecution for his own transactions in connection with the granting of the franchise to that road The inducement of protection from any of his acts as member of the board in 1884 was made in Inspector Byrnes' office Witness was urged to make an entire statement at Nicol's house and he made a statement with Mr Martine's aid Witness at first refused the proposition at Inspector Byrnes' office He wanted to consult with his family and he was allowed to go home He consulted with his family and his son in law and concluded to make a statement

Witness was asked if he had returned his boodle on being stricken with remorse He answered 'I shall if God lets me live'

'Have you?' persisted the lawyer

Witness acknowledged that he had not He confessed that he had received $1000 for his vote on another railroad matter and had [illegible] that he would when [illegible] He had been delayed in that act by pressing family matters

IN CONCLUSION

When the direct examination was resumed Fullgraf said that he was not asked to inculpate any one in his statement to the district attorney He made the statement because his conscience troubled him and it was the only restitution he could make for what he had done He said he felt his disgrace keenly, more on account of his family than himself He had received $[illegible] [illegible] the city as [illegible] This ended his testimony and Fullgraf was taken back to the district attorney's [illegible]

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

ENGLAND AND AUSTRIA

NEW YORK Nov 19—[illegible] says The Vienna correspondent of the Daily Telegraph sends this dispatch I hear on good authority that negotiations are being actively carried on between the English and Austrian governments Constantine Phipps English charge de affaires confers daily with Count Kalnoky at Pesth and under existing circumstances it is evident that interviews between the British representative and the Austrian minister of foreign affairs must be of the very highest importance Although it should not be too readily assumed that Count Kalnoky has suddenly modified his views with regard to the expediency of an Anglo Austrian alliance yet accounts received within the last day or two from St Petersburg may compel him to regard it as a necessity At all events the Austrian government has expressed no definite opinion on the merits of Prince Nicholas of Mingrelia It is necessary before all things that Russia should give it to be clearly understood whether or not she is disposed to recognize the present sobranje If not then a new election will be required which will materially complicate matters According to the Berlin treaty the prince must be freely elected by the population and afterward confirmed by the porte, with the consent of the powers. In case the throne becomes vacant it is stipulated that a new prince shall be elected in the same way. The powers are consequently not at liberty to impose a prince of their own choice upon the Bulgarians and in any case there can be no advantage in nominating a candidate before they know whether Russia will agree to his being elected by the present sobranje

GOING TO LEAVE ANYHOW

VIENNA Nov 19—Dispatches from Sofia state that the regents knew five days before Russia instructed Gen Kaulbars to leave Bulgaria unless his demand for the dismissal of Gen Mutkuroff was complied with that he was going to leave anyhow The authorities have all been ordered to afford every facility for the safe departure of Russian officials and those under their protection who will leave the country along with Gen Kaulbars and to take all the steps necessary to prevent any outbreak or disorder on the occasion of their departure It is stated that Russia will send to the powers a memorandum concerning the Bulgarian question and the action of Gen Kaulbars

Telegrams have been sent to Prince Alexander congratulating him on the first anniversary of his decisive victory over the Servians which he won at Slivnitza in November 1885

WAR EXTREMELY PROBABLE.

NEW YORK Nov 19—A cablegram to the Star says The situation in the East is acute Nothing like it has been seen since the days immediately preceding the Crimean war when England and France entered into an alliance as England and Austria are doing to engage in war with Russia. Russia practically holds Bulgaria having deposed Prince Alexander annulled the sobranje and reduced the government to nil The speeches of Kalnoky and Salisbury are regarded in military clubs as indicating an early declaration of war

THE BULGARIAN THRONE

PESTH Nov 19—It is stated here that Austria England and Germany have proposed that before a successor to Prince Alexander be elected, the union between Bulgaria and Eastern Roumelia shall be adjusted on a permanent basis It is said that Russia has rejected the proposal

CONDEMNED TO DEATH.

LOST ON THE LAKES.

Many Persons Perish During the Recent Great Storm.

THE EXPERIENCE OF A SURVIVOR.

A Fearful Night of Suffering, Terror and Death—The Fiercest Gale in the History of the Lakes—A Daring Rescue.

DETROIT Nov 19—A special to the Free Press from Frankfort says A terrible lake disaster occurred last night, and there is left not a soul to tell the story During the night of the storm yesterday afternoon, at intervals through the blinding snowstorm, a three-masted schooner could be seen about six miles southwest of Frankfort. Her masts were almost bare and the deck seemed clear of cargo An attempt was made to anchor her and she held for a time but soon broke loose and drifted helplessly before the gale. The wind gradually increased in violence and the seas were growing every moment larger when darkness settled over the lake.

Help was asked from the life-saving station at Manistee but it was impossible for a tug to live in such a gale. After great trouble the life-saving station six miles north of here was reached, and the apparatus was hauled down the coast by a few volunteers over steep hills winding ravines, tree trunks and heavy snow drifts and pelted by driving snow and hail They arrived at the scene of disaster at Herring creek at 4 o'clock this morning, after a twenty mile struggle against the elements The vessel was totally broken up and with the cargo piled upon the beach everything being completely destroyed Broken masts, shrouds lumber and debris—all were mixed and piled together Capt Matthews thinks she must have had her anchor down and pounded to pieces on the outer bar

One body was found—that of a man about 38 years old with black hair and sandy mustache. In a pocket of his coat was found a letter bearing the address of William Laurrey 131 Madison street Chicago His face was badly jammed, and his hands lacerated

The vessel's yawl with the name Menekaunee, was [illegible] uninjured It is thought she had a [illegible] and that she broke as soon as she struck No other bodies have as yet been discovered

ANOTHER WRECK

Another wreck was discovered two miles south, where the same chaotic wreckage was seen by the Free Press correspondent. The entire stern of the schooner Marinette of Racine Wis was discovered At a neighboring farm house was a bruised and battered sailor with lacerated hands from which the flesh was stripped and his feet were badly swollen He is G W Annis of Port Huron a sailor on his first trip and is the only survivor of this vessel He says 'We loaded at Oconto with lumber for George Loud owner of the lost vessel and left for Chicago Sunday, the tow consisting of the steambarge Manistique and the schooners Marinette and Menekaunee. We met heavy weather on lake Huron and were driven to shelter to Presque Isle. We then left and made the passage on lake Michigan

Wednesday noon a southeast gale set in, with rain and snow At midnight while abreast of Ludington six miles out the gale increased to almost a hurricane The barge reached for the Wisconsin shore and made the Two Rivers light, but could fetch nothing. At daylight the Manistique squared away for Manitou islands to escape the onslaught of the storm, and the tow broke up. At 10 the steamer left us to our fate We signaled to them to stay by us, but she steamed away, and was lost to sight in the snow squall

The Marinette pitched and rolled terribly, so that we could scarcely keep a foothold She unshipped her rudder becoming unmanageable, and then sprang a leak and became water-logged She rolled her deck load off taking both rails and bulwarks with it She rolled her mainmast out, and in falling it took the foremast and mizzen head.

A TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE.

We sighted Frankfort during the evening. We were huddled in the cabin where we built a temporary floor over the water The captain was washed overboard and drowned at 2 o'clock in the afternoon We lowered the yawl at 5 o'clock and attempted to reach land but in lowering she sprung a leak rendering her useless, and we let her go adrift At 10 :30 she struck the beach broadside and swung head to and we rushed out of the cabin Our crew was eight men, all told. Some huddled under the lee of the cabin, clinging to the rail for [illegible]

The stewardess Mary was clinging to us and crying I helped her up the shrouds, and she tried to hold on until I could fasten her but she could not stand the cold and suddenly let go her hold and fell down across me nearly carrying me along, and fell into the boiling sea beneath us. Her daughter aged 14 pet of the crew, never left the cabin but was drowned there

Clinging to the rigging with me were 'French John' and Mr Cumfrey Soon the mast fell across the cabin We then clung to the davits at her stern the sea dashing over us The others, we thought gradually washed off one after another.

DASHED ON SHORE

At 1 o'clock Mr Cumfrey and John said they would try to reach shore. They each took a loose plank and started They neared land and I halloed 'Do you get along all right?' Answer came, 'All right' and then all was silent A heavy sea swept over the wreck, carrying me along I grappled a small piece of deck plank and after a terrible experience was flung upon shore. I crawled to the house of Mr Mortenson, who took care of me.

'Our crew consisted of captain, name unknown; William Cumfrey French John of Alpena, G. W. Annis, Norwegian from Cape Town Norway; Mary and daughter Minnie from Port Huron, and another named John

I think the Menekaunee was waterlogged. I did not see her after it grew dark. She had a crew of seven—Capt. Cotton, mates Dan Wheeler and John Cotton two young men. cooks John and Mike Johnson of Port Huron"

The body found is probably John Cotton of Port Huron While at the wreck fresh wreckage was discovered out in the lake Sailor Annis says "I looked out at daybreak and saw a small steam barge standing on the outer bar abreast of here. She had a fantop on her smokestack and an exhaust pipe half way up the stack. She was about [illegible]5 tons had a tapered mast, no cross trees and a fly hoisted at the masthead. She came on broadside headed south and pounded fearfully filled and sunk He saw nothing of the crew, and thinks all were lost.

FIERCEST GALE ON RECORD.

Lake Superior Disturbed as it Never was Before—A Daring Rescue.

CHICAGO, Nov 19—Particulars concerning the great storm which has been raging on Lake Superior show that it was the fiercest gale that ever swept the lakes. At Marquette the lake was dashed into seafoam by the terrible force of the wind and sea after sea rolled completely over the breakwater, producing a tremendous current and undertow in the harbor Vessels at the docks snapped their heavy lines like threads, and were compelled to go out and lie at anchor. The breakwater harbor light was torn from its heavy timber fastenings and washed into the lake. The tower was lifted by an immense wave and hurled top first into the lake where it drifted rapidly.

The rescue of the crew of the Cleveland schooner Florida by the tug Gillette was a daring act, and was witnessed by a thousand people who thronged the beach The Florida would have made harbor in safety but for the blinding snow. When the storm abated a little the captain of the Florida found his boat in imminent danger of being dashed against the breakwater, and he at once dropped both anchors in an attempt to save the boat.

Capt. Frank of the tug Gillette, steamed to the rescue. He saw that he could not save the vessel, and bent all his energies towards rescuing the crew The captain endeavored to get up to the Florida several times bow on but was unable to do so and finally backed up, getting the tug's stern under the vessel's quarter

The Florida's crew then began to leap for their lives a very difficult thing considering the immense breakers which swept the schooner fore and aft and kept the Gillette jumping about. After three of them had reached the tug safely a heavy sea threw her against the Florida, and for a few minutes it looked as if the Gillette would share the schooner's fate Her engine was on a center, and the wheel could not be moved either way, while great rollers were sending the tug toward shore rapidly. Three men in the crank pit, however managed to turn the crank just in time to enable the daring captain to save her and return to the work of rescue.

After the Gillette was in position again two more sailors made the leap in safety and then only the captain and mate were left. The captain was not willing to leave the vessel before the mate was safely off but the latter refused to jump, although repeatedly ordered to do so by both captains. Finally he crept over the side of the Florida and clung there despite the entreaties of the men on the tug below who wanted him to let himself drop, and even attempted to pull him down but were unable to loosen his hold Just as he clung there a great sea hurled the tug against the schooner with terrible force catching the unfortunate man between the vessels and grinding his legs into pulp As the vessels separated he was caught and drawn aboard the tug, the captain making the leap at the same moment.

PORTLAND, SATURDAY, NOV. 20, 1886.

AS TO PUGET SOUND.

The people of Puget sound have been hoping for some time that the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company would extend its line from Portland into their country. From time to time the company has been urged to enter this field by residents and business men at the Sound, who complain of the policy of the Northern Pacific, which, not content to attend to its own legitimate business as a carrier, leaving the various towns to build themselves up in their own way "under the workings of even handed justice in transportation," has assumed most arrogantly to tear down and to build up as it has suited the whim or interests of its managers. Seattle, Whatcom, Olympia, Port Townsend and other points which have been passed by, in the interest of Tacoma, are eager for independent rail connection; and even Tacoma, anxious for the advantages of competition, would welcome the coming of another line.

The general plan proposed by those who have given this scheme most attention is the extension of the O. R. & N. road almost directly north from Portland, crossing the Columbia river at Vancouver, tapping the rich river districts of Clarke and Cowlitz counties, and thence north to Olympia. From here it is suggested that two branches should reach out to the north, one following the east and the other the west shore of the Sound, the former terminating at Port Townsend and the latter at Whatcom. It is urged in support of this scheme, for as yet it is only a scheme, that by building these branches as proposed, the O. R. & N. Company would literally put its arms around the Sound and gain the whole of its business.

If the Union Pacific should become the owner of the O. R. & N. lines, an outcome which now seems practically certain, the chances of this Puget sound scheme will be advanced greatly. The policy of the Union Pacific is energetic in the extreme, as is well illustrated by its construction of the Short Line and its present enterprise in taking in the O. R. & N. lines. In the Columbia river basin and at Portland the Union Pacific will meet the competition of the Northern Pacific, and as a means of offsetting this competition, of giving as well as taking blows, as well as through a desire to extend its territory, it may push its line on to Puget sound. On the other hand, it may engage with the Northern Pacific to keep out of the Sound country to keep the latter out of the Snake river and Walla Walla country. The motives of railway management in these complex matters are often past finding out, so that speculations as to what they may or may not do have little basis. In a general way, however, it is reasonable to assume that so great a field as the Puget sound country will not long remain in the undisputed possession of a single railroad company, especially when that company pursues a policy which outrages the sentiment and hurts the business of three men out of five in the community.

Puget sound, while a large field, does not afford railroad business in proportion to its population or to its industrial importance. Almost the whole production of the country is carried away in ships. The bulk of its lumber goes to San Francisco or to foreign countries by sea. The wheat of the Whatcom district goes to San Francisco by sea. The coal product goes out chiefly by sea. Hops, a little wool, a little lumber, shingles, etc., go east by rail. The mills are all owned or controlled in San Francisco, and from that city the mill towns and the logging camps and communities which they supply draw their merchandise of all kinds. It is brought up by the ships returning for cargoes of lumber, and is forced upon the employes of the mill companies. With the coal companies it is precisely the same. The railroad which serves the country gets little in the way of products to carry out, and gets not more than half the inward carriage of merchandise. Roads running north and south along the shores of the Sound, in order to get business at all would have to take it at very low rates, since the Sound affords, at all times and free to all, a means of cheap competition.

These circumstances, highly favorable as they are for general and future prosperity, are likely to delay railway building in the Sound country. Railway managers see and note all these factors more quickly than anybody else. Among other things the prospect of competition from the Canadian Pacific is likely to hinder railway development. But in time, when by the development of manufacture the country has exchanged its connections with San Francisco for connections with the East, there will be at Puget sound a business well worth the attention of the railroads.

FINE TRAITS OF CHARACTER.

The late ex-President Arthur was a man of many fine traits of personal character. He was so loyal to his country that at a time when men, who were too selfish and cowardly to wear the uniform of either side, were robbing the state as swindling contractors under their respective flags, he had millions of dollars pass through his hands without allowing a cent to stick to his fingers. He scorned to use his unexampled opportunity to enrich himself in his country's hour of travail. New York sent 284 regiments, 35 batteries and 25 companies to the field, and although millions of dollars passed through Arthur's hands as quarter-master general, his accounts were so absolutely straight when he left office that they were promptly passed by the auditing officers of the federal government. It may be said that it is small credit to a man that he did not steal when he had a chance to do it without detection, but when we remember what a cloud of persons robbed the government right and left during the war, and are to-day living in smiling content on the proceeds of that blood money, it is pleasant to remember that Arthur as a poor man handled millions, and when the war ended his "robe and his integrity to heaven" was all he could call his own. He had the primal quality of a gentleman, absolute pecuniary integrity that could not be tempted to soil itself by base bribes or any indirection. His personal honor had no price at a time when few persons who had his opportunity were proof against the temptation to make the nation's hour of difficulty their opportunity to steal themselves rich at the expense of the state. When it is remembered how the great majority of volunteer quartermasters and commissaries managed to get rich out of their opportunity, despite the army regulations, and retired from the army unmolested with the plunder, it is pleasant to remember that Arthur never even came under the faintest suspicion of dishonor. He had another fine quality, he was intensely loyal to his wife while she was in life; and what is finer yet, he was always loyal to her memory after her death. It was President Arthur's habit to take his children annually to Annapolis, where stands the monument to Commander William L. Herndon, U. S. N., the brave commander of the Central America, whose heroism in keeping to his vessel when it was sinking cost him his life (September 12, 1857). President Arthur's wife was the daughter of this gallant Southern gentleman, whose deed has been commemorated in many songs and stories, and it was a fine impulse which made Arthur wish his children to see how their gallant grandfather's memory was kept alive. This spirit that led Arthur to educate his children to love their heroic grandfather because he died for men is the defense of Memorial Day against its detractors. Arthur believed that it was far better for his boy to be educated to honor his maternal grandfather for his devotion to duty in the hour of danger and death than to teach him to worship nothing but the golden calf in the shape of a Gould or a tax-dodging Vanderbilt.

Arthur had the courage of a gentleman when insulted. When Colonel "Billy" Wilson, a New York "tough," was organizing his regiment of metropolitan thugs, bullies, thieves and murderers, who afterwards proved to be the most cowardly regiment that ever disgraced the Federal uniform, he went to Arthur's office and rudely demanded to be furnished at once with certain supplies, arms, clothing, equipments, etc. Gen. Arthur told him he could not comply with his demand; that he (Wilson) had not been commissioned yet as colonel, or his men mustered in, and that he could not recognize his authority. Wilson replied with grossly insulting language. Arthur instantly rose, tore Wilson's colonel's straps from his shoulders, trod them contemptuously under his feet, and threw Wilson out of his office, as if he had been an insolent boy, instead of a "terror," and a "bad man" to handle.

IS THERE A REMEDY?

The fact of enormous evasion of taxes by great property holders is conceded; the question naturally asked is, "what is the remedy?" The tax reform commission, created by the New York legislature a few years ago, with no less man than David A. Wells at its head, answered this question by proposing that all taxes shall be raised solely from the land and the improvements upon it, from "real estate." The argument in favor of this plan was that under the legal fictions of the present tax laws "no man, no corporation, banks excepted, need pay a tax on personal property." The commission found that the personal property in New York city, liable to taxation, besides shares in banks and other corporations was only about $38,000,000, and including bank and other shares only $202,674,000 or a little over one-sixth of the real estate. The commission argued that the wisest plan would be to exempt all individual personal property from taxation and throw the entire burden upon corporations and real estate; that it would add but a trifle to the taxes upon real estate and "would put an end to an endless amount of vexation, annoyance and misconception." The commission reasoned that any tax system which aims to force greedy, dishonest men to confess about their possessions, in order that they may be taxed, only increases the number of those who get off by lying or evasion; that such a system rigidly administered "tends always to become a system for taxing the honest and upright, who would pay their dues under any system, and for driving the weak and the knavish into falsehood." The commission, therefore, fixed upon real estate as the thing to base the bulk of taxes upon, "since it could not be concealed, or sworn down, and grew in value with the growth of the state."

The commission said that resorting to the real estate for the bulk of the revenue would not preclude the taxation also of the stock of corporations within the state, because it would be in accordance with the same sound principle of taxing "nothing that can be hidden or carried away." The commission summed up its argument by saying, tax "the visible, the immovable, and you will get your money and avoid evasion; but tax the invisible and removable and you will find that while it is every year clearly more valuable your revenue will not grow, but will positively fall off." The predictions of this tax commission have been fulfilled, for the return of personal property shrinks rather than grows from the date of this report. The New York Sun agrees with the conclusion of this Wells commission, and the other day the New York Times said:

> There is only one way of doing away with the inequality and injustice which result from those unworkable tax laws. That is, to tax all corporate property and franchises, of which stocks and bonds are merely representative, adequately, and lay all other taxes on real estate, which cannot be concealed, carried away or converted, or taxed anywhere except where it stands. Taxes of this kind are diffused by an inevitable law so that they are borne in a stricter proportion to wealth than can be attained by any device of making sworn returns or any attempt to reach all forms of property, tangible and intangible. The property represented in corporations and in real estate is a matter of record, and it cannot escape. It is owned and legitimately valued in very close proportion to the wealth of those who hold the title to possession, and by limiting taxation to property in that form practical equity would be attained as it can be done in no other way.

The commission are probably sound in their conclusion, so far as a great city community like New York is concerned, but it would be hard in a rural community to overcome the fear of the farmers that the rich men of the towns and cities would escape if public burdens all came directly on the soil. There has been a practical reform effected in the tax laws of New England in the case of Vermont. Up to 1880 tax evasion had become so outrageous that the returns of personal property in Burlington for that year, when the city had 13,000 people, and had wonderfully increased in wealth, was less than it was in 1850, when it had but 7000 inhabitants. In 1880, a day laborer, destitute of taxable real or personal estate, paid a poll tax of nearly six dollars. The real and personal property of the city was worth over $10,000,000, while the appraised value was but $2,500,000, and in consequence of this fraudulent valuation of property the poor man paid a tax of six dollars, when if the property was all placed in the list he would not have paid to exceed two dollars. The weakness of the law and the evasions and under-valuations under it were so gross that the legislature recast the old law and passed an act requiring every taxpayer to put in his list and make judicial oath to it, and in event of his neglect to make out a list the assessors were authorized to ascertain as far as possible the amount of his property, and to double him as a penalty for his neglect or refusal to comply with the law. The law went into operation, and during the first two years there were a number of distinguished property holders who elected to be "doubled" rather than put in a sworn list. Among them were Senator Edmunds, ex-Gov. J. Gregory Smith, Chief Justice Royce of the supreme court, and Rev. Charles Van Norden, a leading clergyman of the Congregational church. But the lists were published; the press opened fire and these gentlemen found they could not endure the popular odium consequent upon their conduct. A republican candidate for the state senate was beaten in a strong republican county on this issue. Senator Edmunds, Chief Justice Royce and ex-Gov. Smith saw the point and the next year promptly put in a sworn list, and the result was a very large increase in the return of taxable property, and the reduction of the poor man's poll tax from $6 to about $3. The reformed law worked well enough in that agricultural state to justify its trial in other states. If it be said that excessive taxation or tax evasion can not be corrected if the people care to correct it, we answer that the city of Syracuse, with a population of some 50,000, once reduced its municipal expenses, under a reform mayor, from $600,000 annually in 1876, to $350,000 in 1878.

President Hayes broke down completely in his effort to keep the office holders out of politics. It remains to be seen if President Cleveland will fare better. In this matter we believe he has made the most serious mistake of his administration up to this time. He has attempted to discriminate where discrimination is impracticable.

There is great embarrassment among the "mugwump" journals. They highly commended President Cleveland for removing the Missouri district attorney; and now they don't know what to say to his reinstatement of the man in office.

In his quarrel with the managers of the Mills' school for girls in California, Dr. Homer B. Sprague proves himself a very contemptible fellow. But at the same time the management does not make a much better figure.

The Northern Pacific directory is a trifle late in its proposition for a "joint lease."

Lost Faith in Physicians.

There are innumerable instances where cures have been effected by SCOVILL'S SARSAPARILLA, OR BLOOD AND LIVER SYRUP, for all diseases of the blood, when they had been given over by their physicians. It is one of the best remedies ever offered to the public, and as it is prepared with the greatest care, as a specific for certain diseases, it is no wonder that it should be more effectual than hastily written and carelessly prepared prescriptions. Take this medicine for all disorders arising from impure blood. It is endorsed by leading professional men.

Rupture Cured.

We will pay your fare from any part of Oregon to Portland and hotel expenses while here if we do not produce indisputable evidence from well-known bankers, doctors, lawyers, merchants and farmers as to our reliability in the cure of reduceable rupture or hernia, without knife, needle or sharp instrument. You are secure against accident from the first day until cured, and the cure guaranteed permanent or money refunded. You can work every day, no matter what your occupation, without danger or inconvenience. Consultations free. Office hours from 9 to 4 daily. Correspondents will enclose stamp for reply and address Drs. Fordon & Luther, rooms 8 and 9, First National bank, Portland, Oregon.

SALEM NOTES.

SALEM, Nov. 19.

The supreme court has adjourned until Monday next.

Hon. Henry Rogers and wife, of Douglas county, are visiting relatives in this city.

Miss Sadie Nelson returned last evening from a week's sojourn at the metropolis.

Harvey Odle had the misfortune to fall, on Wednesday last, and break his good left arm.

The weather has once more settled down to business and the Oregon mist again predominates.

Our city meat markets have been receiving, killing and packing large quantities of pork during the recent cold snap.

Mr. J. George Williams and Hon. W. H. Byars are mentioned as prominent candidates for councilmen from the first ward.

Mr. E. L. Bristow has accepted the position of city editor of the Daily Talk. He is a pleasant writer and a genial gentleman.

Republican city primaries will be held on Tuesday next, more than usual interest being manifested in the coming municipal election.

Mr. E. W. Mix, county clerk of Baker county, has been in the city effecting a settlement with the state authorities for the care and treatment of nonresident paupers.

The M. E. church at Silverton, in this county, is at present enjoying a season of revival, the number of conversions being unprecedented in that section of the state.

Archbishop Gross has been in Salem holding a series of meetings at the Catholic church, which have been largely attended and of much more than ordinary interest.

Deputy Sheriff Baldwin, of Grant county, arrived here yesterday, having in charge one James German, who, having been adjudged insane, was committed to the asylum.

The body of Theo. Riggs, of this city, who died yesterday at the residence of Geo. H. Himes, in Portland, was brought up here for interment in the family burying lot in the Odd Fellows' cemetery.

Mrs. Edw. Hirsch and Miss Ella Hirsch, of this city, accompanied by Mrs. Ben. Hirsch, of Pomeroy, W. T., will leave on the afternoon train to-day for Los Angeles, Cal., where they will remain for several weeks visiting friends and relatives.

O. P. Mason, of Portland, was announced to deliver three lectures at Reed's Opera house, in this city, this week, on scientific subjects. They were not, however, attended as liberally as their merits warranted, and the course was abandoned at the conclusion of the second lecture.

A reception was tendered Rev. H. A. Newell and family by the members and friends of the Presbyterian church at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Albert on Wednesday evening last. Welcoming addresses, responses, general conversation and refreshments made the hours pass pleasantly, and enabled the congregation to become personally acquainted with their new pastor.

Mrs. A. E. Strang and Miss Carpenter entertained a number of their friends with an apron party on Tuesday evening last, which under the management of the well known hostesses was an event of more than ordinary pleasure to those who were fortunate enough to be present. Frank H. Allston, Esq., by virtue of his age and experience in the ranks of bachelorhood, succeeded in carrying off the honors of being the most skillful of the gentlemen present with the use of the needle.

Miss Emily Heulat, of this city, entertained a few of her most intimate friends with a keno party on Wednesday evening last. The novelty of the game proved agreeable to the participants, and the young hostess, assisted by her mother, were untiring in their efforts to make their guests feel welcome, and right royally did they succeed. Their pleasant rooms were well filled, and amusements were abundant. Miss Carrie Moores and Frank S. Dearborne carried off the honors of the evening as the winners of the prizes. The refreshments were abundant and nicely served, and everything passed off pleasantly.

THE FAMOUS "FIRE TRAIN."

HERON, Montana, Nov. 17.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Allow me to correct some trifling inaccuracies which crept into the item about the telegraph company, published last Monday. The "fire train," as it is called, was pulled by engineer Callicott, conductor Morgan, brakemen Springer and Rummel, I was not operator at Salem, but Wells Fargo's messenger. Thinking it would be a joke to telegraph to Dr. Geisy, who kept the boarding house at Aurora, that there "were one passengers" for breakfast, I "cut in," called "Au," (Aurora) twice, signing "Fd." (Salem), when Dr. Plummer, then division superintendent of the Western Union company, told me, "I have authority to hold the train until you can obtain help for us. Portland has been on fire since 5 A. M., and we fear it will take in the whole north end of town." I sent the express wagon down town from the depot on the dead run to ring the alarm and fetch the engine, Capitol No. 1, which, by the way, was formerly Multnomah No. 2, in Portland. We were due to leave Salem at 6:10 A. M. We got away at 7 A. M. exactly, made the run (53 miles) in one hour and eight minutes, stopping eight minutes at Oregon City to load a hose cart. Actual running time, sixty minutes, and slowing at the bluffs entering Oregon City from the south. We ran so fast from Gervais to Rock Island that a grouse flying across the track was hit by the headlight, broke the glass and was found dead by the side of the lamp when we reached the Stark street ferry. This can be substantiated in its entirety by Superintendent Brandt, Dr. Plummer and several old-timers on the O. & C.

E. A. BROWN.

KELLY'S PEDIGREE.

PORTLAND, Nov. 17, 1886.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN.

John J. Kelly, the labor and democratic nominee for the legislature, was born in Ireland 44 years ago, and came to America when 12 years old. He is yardmaster of the Oregon & California railroad at the car shops, but is a pile-driver and bridge-builder. He came to Oregon some eighteen years ago, but during the 70s spent some years in San Francisco, where he was prominent in labor matters. Kelly was financial officer of the California labor party in its strongest days; he resigned immediately when Dennis Kearney showed him a check for $10,000 from Flood & O'Brien, for "spending money." The San Francisco papers at the time lauded Mr. Kelly's integrity. Kelly's skill as a mechanic is attested by bridges and pile-work along the east side road between Portland and Roseburg, and the west side wharves in this city. He served two years in the late war in a cavalry regiment, the First Washington, was wounded at Gettysburg and honorably discharged, but refused to apply for a pension.

N.

A Horrible Form

Of malarial disease is dumb ague. Constant drowsiness, sleep interrupted by a chill, succeeded by a consuming heat, and that by an exhausting sweat. A sensation as of numbness from cold, but no shaking attends it. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters invariably eradicates it, though it is the most obstinate form of miasma born disease. To conquer it with quinine is as impossible as to battle down Gibraltar with a howitzer. Malarial disorders of every kind are attended with derangement of the liver, a fact evinced by the saffron tint which the skin assumes in such diseases. For this symptom as well as for its cause, the Bitters is a certain remedy. Constipation, dyspepsia, rheumatism, inactivity of the kidneys and bladder, are also relieved by this fine alterative.

SEALED PROPOSALS FOR THE CONSTRUCTION of works for the water supply of the city of Portland, Oregon, will be received at this office until 12 M. December 15th, 1886.

These works will be constructed according to the printed specifications dated August 24th, 1886, and will include thirty-one miles of wrought-iron pipe, 27 and 23½ inches in diameter; three iron bridges; two thousand feet of submerged pipe under and across the Willamette river; a reservoir within the city limits, and all other works described in the specifications, excepting those specified as "Head works," which are now under contract.

The specifications provide that the wrought-iron pipes shall be made of iron sixty inches in width, but proposals will also be received for furnishing the iron, and for manufacturing the entire length of pipe of iron either forty-two, forty-eight, or sixty inches in width.

Proposals will also be received for the construction of all the works described in the specifications, excepting the Head-works, for a lump sum, the contractor being at liberty to use iron for the pipes either forty-two, forty-eight, or sixty inches in width, the whole work to be completed within eighteen months after signing the contract.

In these modified forms of proposals the width of iron proposed will be stated in the bids, and a copy of this advertisement will be attached to each bid.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

TESTIMONIAL TO A BELOVED PASTOR.—Last night many members of the First Presbyterian church and other friends of Dr. A. L. Lindsley, D. D., the retiring pastor, assembled in the lecture room of the First Presbyterian church, in response to an invitation issued by Mrs. J. B. Congle, Mrs. H. W. Corbett, Mrs. J. D. Holman, Mrs. W. M. Ladd, John R. Foster, Donald Macleay and Thos. N. Strong. The room was very beautifully decorated with ivy, hemlock, fir, chrysanthemums, roses and geraniums. From 8 o'clock until 9 Dr. and Mrs. Lindsley received the greetings of old friends and new friends, every one of whom expressed gratitude for the past and voiced words of cheer for the future. Shortly after 9 o'clock the assemblage was called to order and Rev. Thomas Boyd, of the South Portland church, addressed Dr. Lindsley on behalf of the friends around him. In well chosen words he referred to the statue of Liberty recently unveiled in the harbor of New York, and then eloquently and poetically made a comparison with the light shed by the torch in Liberty's hand with the light of the gospel as expounded by Dr. Lindsley, during the past two decades. He spoke feelingly of the retiring pastor's work in the Master's vineyard and of the tender relations between him and his congregation. Turning to Mrs. Lindsley, Mr. Boyd referred to her co-operation in the great work of salvation, and asked her to accept from the congregation an oil painting of her husband, which up to that moment was concealed beneath drapery. This being removed, an excellent portrait of the doctor from the brush of Clyde Cook, was revealed. Turning to Dr. Lindsley, Mr. Boyd handed him a purse containing $100. Dr. Lindsley responding to the encomiums uttered by Mr. Boyd, said it was pleasant to be assured that his services had been appreciated. He was deeply grateful for the manifestations of good will thus shown toward him and his wife, and would ever hold them in fond recollection. Much had he to say in taking leave of the congregation with which he had so long been associated, and he reserved it for his farewell sermons to-morrow.

AN INSULTING OFFICER REPRIMANDED.—In obedience to general order, published elsewhere in this morning's OREGONIAN, companies A, E, F, G and K, First regiment, Oregon State militia, assembled for parade last night. They marched to the armory of E company, and formed in line of undress parade. The orders were than published by acting Adjutant Southworth, after which Lieut. J. T. Fellows, company A, was escorted by Lieut. Southworth to a position in front of Col. Merrill, commanding the regiment. Some months ago Fellows wrote a communication grossly insulting Col. J. K. Philips, then in command of the regiment, which the bogus journal printed. The sentence was a public reprimand. In the presence of 162 militiamen, Col. Merrill reminded Fellows; first, of the respect due to gray hairs; second, of the respect due to a gray haired veteran; third, of the respect due to a gray haired veteran commanding the regiment; fourth, the respect due any superior officer. In a very dignified way Col. Merrill stated how the conduct of Fellows, if repeated, was certain to breed insubordination in the ranks, and would break up all attempts to make soldiers of men in the command, for how could officers who refused to respect their superiors hope for respect from their inferiors. The lesson was a wholesome one, not only to the culprit, but to the battalion.

CHINESE IN THE MINSTREL BUSINESS.—Some four months since, Chong Wing Back, a young Chinaman who used to lead the singing in the Baptist mission school here, went East. Yesterday Sid Back received a letter from him dated at Howard City, Michigan. He says: "For the last two three months I always think of going back to Portland, for my business are naver succeed well. But now is a change came to me as to traveling from place to place." He then goes on to state that he and two other Chinamen have made a contract with Messrs. Hannaford and give entertainments, "which is to play and sing." He continues: "We traveling those cities which have no Chinese to live in. I enjoy this joy very much. Some of the peoples very kind to us." Back will be remembered by all who have visited the mission school as the fellow who played the organ and led in the singing. The troupe with which he is traveling is "Hannaford's Chinese Students with Curio Art Exhibition, of Chicago; endorsed by pulpit and press." Now that the Chinese have gone into the minstrel business, artists in burnt cork will be raising a howl, and the Chinese minstrels will be playing even for all the fun made of them in such burlesques as "Chinese Servants," etc. It is safe to bet that Hannaford will not go over the Puget Sound circuit with his company.

ONE FEATURE OF THE LEASE.—Said a well-known capitalist of Portland to an OREGONIAN reporter yesterday: "The lease of the O. R. & N. Co. by the Union Pacific means a great deal for Portland. It makes no difference whether the lease is obtained through the Short Line or by buying a majority of Transcontinental stock. The lease means a vigorous contest both by the Union and Northern companies for the trade that centers here, and reasonable freight for all time to come. It is the interest of both these companies to have a city of metropolitan size at its Pacific terminus, and they will do all they can to assist its growth. I happen to know that the Union Pacific officials look forward to Portland's doubling its present size in a very few years. This great corporation owns 5000 miles of road without counting the new leased line. It constructs an immense amount of rolling stock every year. This rolling stock—that is to say, the box and flat cars—will now be built here, where timber is only 60 per cent., and iron is less in price than it costs at Omaha. There is no timber in the world that equals the Columbia river yellow fir for box cars. The demand for this branch of rolling stock cannot be less than 2000 cars annually."

KNOTTY PROBLEM IN STREET WORK.—The fact that crushed rock with which Morrison street, from Second to Fourth, was lately "dressed up" has been ground up, scraped up and hauled off before the work has been paid for, has caused some comment and growling, and some of the property owners "benefited thereby" swear they will not pay therefor. It seems that after all there is nothing in particular to find fault with in the matter. The so-called dressing up of the blocks in question was merely gone through with in order that it might be possible to lower the grade between Sixth and Eighth streets. Property owners in these two blocks would have stopped the work there but by including several other blocks a majority of the whole could be obtained and the work done. As far as dressing up a rough street with crushed rock and screenings goes it amounts to nothing, for the thin layer put on can never be made to unite with the solid street. If coarse stone is put on it will not pack, but is scattered around by vehicles and horses' feet, and if screenings is used to make the rock "pack" why the whole is ground to pulp and has to be scraped off and removed—just what has happened in the case above mentioned.

COMPARATIVE RAINFALL.—There has been a general complaint this fall of scarcity of rain, and that the complaint is well founded is evidenced by empty cisterns, low stage of water in the rivers, and unplowed fields, etc. But after all perhaps very few realize just how much our rainfall this season falls short of the average. The following statement of the rainfall for twelve years from the 1st of September to November 19, as shown by the records of the signal station, indicate what the deficiency this year is: In '74 it was 12.28 inches; in '75, 23.21; in '76, 21.65; in '77, 20.81; in '78, 12.31; in '79, 10.97; in '80, 5.98; in '81, 18.66; in '82, 19.65; in '83, 12.84; in '84, 11.50; in '85, 12.66, and this fall, from September 1 to date, the rainfall has been only 4.65 inches. This is considerably less than one-third the average rainfall, and is only approached by that of one other year in the list, 1880, the rainfall of which was only 1.33 inches greater. The strong southerly winds of the past day or two seemed full of promise of rain, but it hangs off most unaccountably, giving evidence of the truthfulness of the old saying, that "all signs fail in a dry time."

ROUGH ON SINGLETON.—The Yamhill Reporter detracts from the credit given Detective Singleton by the press of this city for his work in the Marple case, as follows: "Parties well informed are authority for the statement that too many honors have been showered upon Detective (?) Singleton in the Marple-Corker case at Lafayette. He is a very fussy old gent, often so much in the way that his presence was disagreeable to the officers. It looks as though he was fishing for promotion in Portland in consequence of his alleged success in this county. The commissioners might with justice make a few inquiries before going too far in the matter. Whatever was accomplished at Lafayette was done by Sheriff Harris, assisted by citizens, and not a single discovery was made by Mr. Singleton. At the proper time we can substantiate the true story, very different from that which has been given to the public through the press.

VERDICT FOR THE GOVERNMENT.—The case of the United States vs. the Northern Pacific Lumber Manufacturing company, charged with purchasing timber cut on government land, was tried in the U. S. circuit court yesterday. The defendant admitted purchasing the logs, but denied knowing that they were cut on government land. The only evidence defendant introduced was to establish this fact, which was an important one, as if it were shown that it was known that the logs were cut on government land the defendant could be made to pay the value of the lumber made from the logs, but if it was shown that it was not known that the logs were stolen then only the value of logs would be exacted. There was no proof to show that the company knew that the logs were cut on government land, so the jury brought in a verdict for the United States in the sum of $1170 18.

TABERNACLE CONCERT LAST NIGHT.—Another large audience gathered at the tabernacle last night at the fourth number of the Y. M. C. A. members' course. The practical talk was by Mr. C. H. Dodd, who gave a description of the working of an iron mill and the different processes of converting iron into steel in a clear, practical manner. Prof. C. L. Bettenger gave a piano solo, playing with dash and expression. The readings by Mrs. Florence Denny, Mrs. Nina Larowe and Miss Kate Downs were all well received. Mrs. Edgar E. Coursen sang in excellent voice "The Message" and "The Angel Serenade," winning rounds of applause. Mr. Coursen's violin solos were greatly enjoyed, being the finest given in the city for a long time. The next entertainment takes place in two weeks.

NEW SUITS INSTITUTED.—Suit was commenced yesterday in the state circuit court by the Portland Savings bank against the Willamette Steam Mills Lumbering and Manufacturing company to recover $8455 54 on a promissory note executed July 12, 1881, and made payable 100 days from date; also interest and attorneys' fees. D. P. Thompson has instituted proceedings in the same court against Ben Holladay to recover $1101, being money advanced in sums of $100 between January 21 and August 31 of the present year; also $57 83 interest.

RUMORED INJUNCTION SUIT.—It is stated on pretty good authority that an effort is to be made very soon to place an injunction on the Morrison street bridge, or in some way to prevent the completion of the work. In the light of recent court decisions it is not easy to understand how construction can be stopped by legal proceedings or the bridge company even embarrassed. The public on both sides of the river will certainly protest against any interference at this time.

A PLAINTIFF CHARGED WITH PERJURY.—After the jury in the case of M. H. Roberts vs. R. Koehler, receiver of the O. & C. R. R., had brought in their verdict late Thursday night, Mr. J. W. Whalley, of counsel for defense, moved the court that the plaintiff be committed for perjury, as committed in the presence of the court in this trial. The court took the matter under advisement. It appears that Mr. Roberts must have been very badly mistaken about several important facts involved in the suit. He took up the time of the court from 10:15 till noon in telling his version of the case, garnishing his story liberally with moral reflections and criticisms. His testimony on three counts was flatly and squarely contradicted by that of five disinterested persons, of well known good character and reliability. It seems as if Mr. Roberts thought he had a chance to make some money out of the railroad, but he has made it out of his own pocket.

INDICTED FOUR TIMES EACH.—The grand jury have returned four indictments each against W. J. Sears and George H. Robertson of larceny in a dwelling. The first charges them with, on October 23, stealing a coat of the value of $40, a pair of gloves and a handkerchief from D. P. Hughes. Second, that on October 21 they stole a quilt and a pair of boots from the N. P. R. R. warehouse. Third, that on October 25 they stole two coats from H. W. Corbett's stable, belonging to George W. Singleton. On November 2 they again stole a coat belonging to Singleton. Both of the accused were arraigned before Judge Stearns yesterday, and allowed further time to plead.

ALLOWED TO BUILD BY GIVING BONDS.—Judge Hoyt, at Olympia yesterday, in the injunction suit restraining the Postal Telegraph Cable company from building their line upon Northern Pacific railroad right of way, gave a decision permitting the Postal Telegraph company to build on the right of way, upon giving a bond of indemnity in the sum of $20,000. The judge said he had great doubt as to the law and might hold differently in a final trial, but thought that the interest of the public and the parties to the action would be best subserved by allowing the Postal Telegraph company to build during litigation upon giving a good bond.

COUNTER CHARGE.—Tuesday night Mrs. Jim Turk knocked Charles St. Clair down and St. Clair had her arrested and fined in Justice Tuttle's court. Yesterday Mrs. Turk swore out a warrant in police court for the arrest of St. Clair, on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon—to wit—a knife, and St. Clair was brought in by policeman Elwanger. The cause of the trouble is said to be that St. Clair was working as a runner for Jim Turk, and quit and engaged with Charley Turk. Tuesday night he went to Jim's place for an overcoat, which was refused him, and a row ensued. Judge Dement will investigate the case.

ROBBED A SALOON.—About 3:30 o'clock yesterday morning John Brennan broke into the Weinhardt brewery saloon, kept by Charles Baumgarten, on Eleventh street, near B, and stole ten boxes of cigars. Brennan had got but a block away from the place when he was overhauled by policeman Chris Emig, taken to the city jail and locked up on a charge of burglary. Yesterday Brennan had an examination in the police court, and was held to answer before the grand jury. Brennan has taken up his quarters in the county hotel. He will shortly take up his residence in Salem.

GOVERNMENT ENVELOPES.—The Portland postoffice is now fully supplied with stamped envelopes of all sizes and descriptions, a fact that will be welcomed by many business men who have been out of stock for a long time. Several new styles of envelopes have been manufactured by the government this year. Among these are legal envelopes, to accommodate lawyers' papers, and two sizes of baronials, for the use of the ladies or for invitations. The office has also been notified that 25,000 of the new letter sheets will be forwarded shortly.

CLAIMS HE WAS ROBBED.—James Connelly, a saloon-keeper at Second and Taylor streets, was arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of larceny from the person preferred by Alex Rankin. According to Rankin's story he was in the dive and full. When he went in he had three five-dollar pieces, and when he came out he was minus them. He alleges that besides "Brick" Connelly one Mary Doe was connected with the disappearance of his money.

CONTRACT SIGNED.—Yesterday Langford & Bridges signed the contract with the North Pacific Terminal company for erecting the shops in Albina. Work will begin forthwith, and will be finished about June 1. It is expected that the O. R. & N. bridge across the Willamette will be done about the same date.

CAUGHT BY A SHARK.—A sailor was lost overboard from the Yaquina on her last down trip. He kept upon the surface of the water waiting for help from the ship, but before relief reached him he cried out, "a shark's got me!" disappeared and was seen no more.—Yamhill Reporter.

NEW DRUG FIRM.—Mr. John L. Vestal has associated with Mr. John Lane, who formerly kept at 269 First street, and together have taken the corner store in the new Montastes block, First and Jefferson. Mr. Fred Beal, long known to the public, is prescription clerk.

RAFFLE.—This evening at 8 o'clock, at Joe Meyer's Monogram cigar store, there will be a raffle for a trotting horse. The horse has a record of 2:53 as a 3-year-old, and is now 6.

FOR GOOD SAMARITAN HOSPITAL.

In yesterday's paper Bishop Morris made an appeal for a Thanksgiving offering for the Good Samaritan hospital. Following the established custom the committee will make a thorough canvass of the business portion of the city next Wednesday, the day before Thanksgiving. The hospital, under the same management for several years, has won the confidence of the community and has become one of the permanent institutions of the city. It does not need to urge its claims to the generosity of our citizens, who all know its work and its deeds. The collection last year was very liberal and was of material assistance to the institution in its work of caring for the sick and needy. Arrangements have been made to canvass the whole city more thoroughly than formerly, and it is hoped that the collection this year will surpass in variety and abundance that of last year.

CITY CHARTER AMENDMENTS.

Some Very Important Suggestions Made by the Committee.

The committee appointed to revise the city charter have held several meetings and made some progress with the work.

Following are the amendments proposed to so much of the charter as has been under consideration:

Section 2 of chapter II. to contain the board of fire commissioners as well as the mayor, common council and board of police commissioners, as those in whom the power and authority of the municipal corporation of the city is vested.

This is in order to give the city control of the expenditures of the fire department.

Section 8, of the same chapter, to include among the elective officers the city attorney, street superintendent, surveyor, police judge and city assessor, who shall be elected for two years each.

It is proposed to create the office of city assessor so that the city assessment roll need not be copied from the county roll, by doing which the city loses from indebtedness outside of the city being deducted.

Section 13 of chapter XIII., to be amended so that more than one polling place can be designated in each precinct when deemed necessary.

Section 16, chapter III., to be amended so that twelve months' residence in the city and sixty days in any ward, and the payment of $1 poll tax shall be necessary to qualify any one to vote.

The law in relation to preventing and punishing opium smoking shall read to prevent and punish opium smoking and to suppress houses and places kept therefor and to punish any keeper of such house or place, or person who smokes therein or frequents the same or who smokes opium.

The appointment of a harbor master is to be provided for.

A section is to be introduced to regulate weights and measures and to appoint an inspector thereof and define his duties.

Provision is to be made for defining what shall constitute a vacancy in the board of police commissioners. It is proposed that an absence of sixty days from the city without leave of the board shall cause a vacancy.

This brings the committee down to the matter of streets.

KELLY VS. HIGHFIELD.

Testimony against the Plaintiff's Character—The Defendant on the Stand.

Judge Shattuck's court was crowded yesterday morning by a lot of curious people drawn together to hear the testimony for the defense in the Kelly-Highfield case. On the opening of court the cross-examination of Dr Ross was resumed. He became badly mixed up, and before the counsel for plaintiff had finished with him, acted like the boy who didn't know if he was going to school or coming home.

Mrs. Dr. Thompson testified that plaintiff had been requested to leave a Martha Washington social, but not on account of general bad reputation.

Mrs. Belle Roberts testified in substance the same as Mrs. Thompson.

Ex-Chief of Police W. H. Watkinds and policeman A. M. Cornelius did not know much about Mrs. Kelly's reputation, except from hearsay.

Dr. John Welch, of Oregon City, testified that he heard Mrs. Kelly's reputation for chastity questioned, but personally didn't know much about her between the years 1877 and 1886.

The next witness was Jacob Neidenauer. He testified that Mrs. Kelly's reputation was bad; knew so and had heard so. His memory was very defective as to dates, however. Neidenauer, on cross-examination, admitted that he had been employed by the defense to hunt up witnesses, and had first been approached by Mrs. Kelly to testify in her behalf, when he said, "No. I work for money," at the same time tapping his hand suggestively on his pocket.

M. F. Whittle testified that Mrs. Kelly bore a bad reputation, but he couldn't remember anyone who spoke to him concerning her character. It was a sort of a floating bad reputation. On cross-examination Whittle was somewhat broken up. He was forced to admit that at one time he ran a disorderly saloon and was closed up by the authorities; also to his wife having been divorced from him.

Wm. Ernken gave unimportant testimony.

Dr. W. H. Saylor didn't know anything about plaintiff's reputation from the years 1877 to 1886; couldn't say anything against it. He declined to testify to waiting on her professionally for a private complaint, claiming his privilege as a physician.

W. C. Johnson testified to a meeting in R. Williams's office when Mrs. Kelly wanted Highfield to marry her to save her reputation and protect her children from slander, agreeing if Highfield would do so she would waive all dowry rights and claim to his estate; that Highfield refused, etc.; further, that Mrs. Kelly said her daughter came home crying from school, and gave as a reason that her mother's relations with Highfield had been referred to.

Martha A. Collins, divorced wife of Whittle, testified to hearing Mrs. Kelly making fun many times of Highfield, but spoke of their engagement times without number.

Charles Brown, a colored barber, never heard Mrs. Kelly spoken of other than as a lady. Defendant's attorneys immediately excused him.

The next witness called to the stand was the defendant, William T. Highfield. He took the stand with a hop, skip and a jump and proved to be a very chipper old chap and quite a comedian. He had no sooner taken the stand than the audience began crowding up around it and had to be admonished by Judge Shattuck to resume their seats, which they did regretfully. Highfield finally cleared his throat, however, and commenced telling his story in a voice sufficiently loud for everybody present to hear. He began with telling how long he and plaintiff had known each other, and followed by denying that he ever agreed to marry her. He next attacked her character and alleged that all the relations between them had been of an improper nature. He proved himself quite a character, interspersing his statement with little side shots, which seemed to be relished by the audience, but were received in silence by the jury, and Highfield's testimony in the main is unfit for publication. His examination in chief lasted until the adjournment of court. The cross-examination will be commenced with this morning.

SECOND SKETCH NIGHT.

Last night was the second sketch night of the Portland Art club. The subject was "Still Life."

No. 1 was a crayon sketch. Still life was represented by a stuffed magpie, Mrs. W. S. Rogers.

No. 5, W. H. Byrne—Grinning skull with cigar between the teeth, resting on a box of cigars; pipe, tobacco and champagne.

No. 6, L. B. Aiken—Box of blacking, brush and dauber.

No. 7, C. L. Smith—A lore glass and oyster cocktail.

No. 8, A. Burr—Still life was morbidly represented by the body of a drowned dog, floating on the surface of a stagnant pool, anchored to a stone at the bottom. A swarm of flies was hovering over the bloated body.

No. 9, R. R. Habersham—MORNING OREGONIAN of Nov. 17, lying on red covered table, tobacco bag, pipe and matchsafe.

No. 10, E. W. Moore—Pastel, snipe hanging by a nail to a board.

THANKSGIVING DONATIONS FOR THE CHILDREN'S "HOME."

Mr. D. P. Thompson has generously tendered the use of a room in the old quarters of the Portland Savings bank, corner Second and Stark, for the reception of donations to the "Home." The ladies will be very grateful for contributions of food and clothing and any articles useful in a household.

Two of the ladies will be in attendance all day Wednesday and until noon on Thursday, to see that all gifts brought in are properly cared for and sent to the "Home." Housekeepers, merchants, mothers and fathers are especially requested to remember the little ones at the "Home" on Thanksgiving day. Please send your donations to the room on Second street, next door to Ackerman's, and one door from the corner of Stark. Goods received all day Wednesday and on Thursday morning.

SOME MODERN RELICS.

Yesterday Councilman Gallagher took the centennial tin globe which had ornamented the flagstaff in the Park block to the city auditor's office and there opened it. It contained the following "relics" which were placed in it more than ten years ago:

THE EAST SIDE.

TWO DEATHS FROM OLD AGE.

Mr. J. F. P. Johnson, aged 83 years, died at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Long, in the Harrington block, in this city, about 8 o'clock on Thursday evening. Deceased has been ailing for several months, but with no particular disease, and he continued to grow weaker until the time of his death. He was a soldier in the late war, and at the age of 60 years fought in the battle of Stone River. He was a member of Sumner post, No. 12, G. A. R., of this city, under whose auspices he will be buried. The announcement of which will be found among the funeral notices in this paper.

Mr. Matthias Reynolds, aged 82 years, died at his residence in Powell's valley on Thursday evening. Deceased was a native of Virginia, but when quite a young man removed to Warren, Iowa, and afterwards to Powell's valley, in this state, where he has resided for twenty-five years, and has always been greatly respected by his neighbors. His funeral will take place at 11 o'clock this morning, from the White school house.

FIRE MEETING.

A regular meeting of Pioneer engine company No. 1 was held last evening, at which but very little business was done except to elect a member of the board of fire delegates in place of W. G. Kerns, resigned. Walter Bartel was put in nomination and unanimously elected to fill the vacancy. Mr. Kerns, who has been a member of the department full seven years, made application for an exempt certificate, which was granted. The subject of nominating an assistant chief engineer of the department was considered, and it was decided not to make any nomination.

NOTES.

The framework for the approach to the New Morrison street bridge is being pushed forward quite rapidly, nearly all the bents being in position from Water street to the river.

The name of the man who beat his horse so unmercifully and left him to die in the southern part of the city yesterday, has been ascertained to be Feathers, and hails from Damascus. The street commissioner buried the animal yesterday. Feathers had better fly into town and settle the matter as soon as possible.

Mr. Thos. Hislop's new brick store building on the corner of Fifth and U streets, Stephens addition, is about completed. All that remains to be done is the finishing coat of paint on the Wooden awning in front. The interior of the two large store rooms are completed, and the occupants are moving in. The new building gives that part of the city quite a business appearance.

PRODUCE RECEIPTS—Past 24 hours: 8725 ctls wheat, 838 bbls flour, 430 ctls oats, 24 ctls mill stuff, car chopped barley, 5138 lbs wool, 425 lbs hides, 35 cs eggs, 35,133 lbs hops, 2019 bxs fruit, 181 pkgs dried do, 8 pkgs butter, 100 hogs, 60 sks, onions, 150 sheep. Also from the eastern section, 24,391 ctls wheat, 400 bbls flour, 200 sks flax seed, 250 lbs wool, 935 lbs hides, 174 hogs, 40 cattle.

FREIGHTS—Spot tonnage holds higher views. There is a quite a quantity offering to arrive, and some below 40s. A rate of 38s 9d would attract some, but even this is beyond the views of some exporters. The San Francisco report to-day mentions one chartered on spot at 26s 3d, or 1s 3d below most recent spot business for equal size.

WHEAT—Advices are of firm markets, but our own does not appear to be affected and there is little reported in the way of sales. Holders have things more in their favor and are confident that values will appreciate. Here buyers are not talking any higher figures than quoted for several days past. The first move will doubtless be in the inferior.

OATS—To-day's receipts are for shipment, hence there is no addition to spot stocks. Best feed nominal at 43c.

POULTRY—Demands not as free as might be expected. Best figure for turkeys is 16c, and there is little prospect of an advance. Ducks sold $4@5 25. Chickens still quoted $2@3.

EGGS—Forty-five barrels eastern in. Receipts of local are light and the market is firm at 35c.

MARKETS BY TELEGRAPH.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Government bonds were dull and steady. The stock market was active, with the widest distribution of business ever recorded. Richmond & West Point absorbed the greatest amount of interest, though the general list received a great deal of attention. The opening was extremely active and strong, first prices showing gains of ⅛ to ⅜ generally. There were further slight advances in early dealings, but prices soon became heavy, and continued alternately heavy and firm for the greater part of the day, though the last hour saw a strong market throughout. The close was active and strong, close to opening figures.

Mining shares were active and firm. Deadwood $2 95, Horn Silver $1 90@2, Sierra Nevada $3 50, Yellow Jacket $3 75, Mono $2 60, Best & Belcher $4 75, Alice $1 60, Mexican $4 05, Silver King $6 50, Hale & Norcross $6 10, Union Con $2 50.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Money on call, quiet at 4@6, closing 3 asked. Prime paper, 4@5. Sterling exchange, quiet and steady at $4 81½ for sixty day bills, $4 84½ for demand.

CERTAIN "ARGUMENTS" EXAMINED.

PRINEVILLE, Nov. 15,

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

In your issue of October 22 I noticed a communication entitled "More Prohibition Argument," in which the writer "squeezed down the editorials and clippings of THE OREGONIAN to a few propositions."

In answering those propositions he starts out by declaring that "in denying the desirability and attainability of total abstinence you deny the moral progress of the race."

If this is true, then the total abstainer has reached an advanced stage on the road to moral progress, if not the zenith of morality. Can it be that he is better than Christ, who made wine and gave it to his disciples, or George Washington, who always kept grog in his house and gave it regularly to his servants?

Nay, I do not believe he has reached a higher notch of morality than Victor Hugo, who drank rum; Lord McCauley, who drank ale; Von Moltke, who drank beer, or Grant, who is reported to have drank whisky. I have even a suspicion that he is no better than many a common, every-day man who takes his drinks in a moderate way. Nevertheless, I will cheerfully admit that he stands on the topmost round of morality's ladder, provided he shall grant me the logical conclusion that he can climb no higher without falling off. If he goes a step farther and brings about a state of affairs which compels others to abstain, contrary to their desire, he violates the civil axiom that (I am now quoting W. D. Lyman) "the liberty of one man is limited by the rights of another."

But hold! Prohibitionists do not want to prohibit drinking at all; they only want to prohibit the "manufacture, importation and sale of intoxicating beverages." This reminds me of a man who said he did not want to poison his neighbor's dog, he only wanted to throw some poisoned meat into his neighbor's yard. But the man threw the poisoned meat into his neighbor's yard because he wanted to poison the dog; and our prohibition friends prohibit the liquor traffic because they want to prohibit drinking. If men would not drink these beverages the most radical reformer in the land would never think of prohibiting their sale. Whenever I hear a prohibitionist say his party "does not propose to prohibit drinking," I know he is worsted in argument. He is like a drowning man who, in his desperate frenzy, clutches the last straw. Nay, more; he stretches forth his hand and grasps at a shadow which he himself does not believe to exist.

But the shallowest, flimsiest defense of prohibition is the statement that liquor is not necessary, and does not benefit any one.

"Once upon a time there lived a man who abstained from all the comforts of life. He lived in a tub, ate his meals with his bare fingers, and drank water out of the hollow of his hands. He had a perfect right to dispense with anything and everything he thought unnecessary, but this gave him no shadow of right to forbid his fellowmen from enjoying whatever they thought proper. Standing in his tub, and pointing to the wealth, comforts and luxuries enjoyed by others, Diogenes might have exclaimed in the words of your correspondent: "I deny that there is any proper use for these things. Nobody pretends to believe that they are ever any benefit. The only excuse for them is that in many instances they do not directly injure the one who partakes of them and do temporarily gratify an unnatural appetite."

But Diogenes employed his arguments on behalf of total abstinence, not prohibition. History does not record that he ever tried to have a law enacted compelling all the men of his day to become total abstainers like himself. This should lead us to presume that he was not a fanatic, but a philosopher in the true sense of the word.

A Chinese Murderer Hanged in San Francisco.

FOOLHARDY BALLOON ASCENSION.

Decision in Favor of the Postal Telegraph Company—A Big Row at the Mills Seminary—Coast Notes.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 19.—Fong Ah Sing, condemned for the murder of a Chinese woman about four years ago, was hanged at 12:08 P. M. to-day.

About an hour before the time set for the execution he became very much excited and rapidly lost his self-control. As the time of the execution grew nearer and nearer he finally fell on his knees before Mr. Ackerman, an attorney for Sheriff Hopkins, who was present in his cell, and begged him to save his life. "I did not commit the crime," cried he, wildly, "and you must not let them hang me." He at last became hysterical, crying and wringing his hands, and occasionally lifting them toward heaven in the most piteous manner. He would not listen to the advice and comforting words of a priest and paid no attention to any surroundings.

When the time came for him to ascend the scaffold he managed to regain his composure and walked steadily on to the death trap.

A few minutes before 12 a dispatch was received from Gov. Stoneman, which read, "I will not interfere." The final preparations were then made and the trap was sprung.

When the rope had reached to its full length it was noticed that it had caught under the doomed man's left arm, so that his body hung at an acute angle with it. There were loud exclamations of horror and considerable excitement. An attempt to pull the body on to the platform of the scaffold proved unsuccessful. Finally a stepladder was procured and the rope was loosened. Life was already extinct, death having been apparently instantaneous.

This order was maintained till the stretch was reached, when Dunbar assumed the lead and won easily by four lengths, Collier second, Argo third; time, 1:56.

Third race, handicap, purse, seven-eighths mile—Cleveland got off first and kept the lead till the finish, winning by a length and a half, Nielson second, Bonita third; time, 1:28.

Fourth race, purse, three quarters—They all got a fair start except Estrella, who was four lengths behind. Bertie R. and Black Pilot made the running, but gave way at the last furlong to Idalene Cotton, who won by a length, Estrella second, Bertie R. third; time, 1:14½. Only five started.

A STATE WEATHER SERVICE.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 19.—Lieut. Glassford, U. S. A., chief signal officer for the Pacific coast, is engaged in trying to arrange a state weather service. He states to-night that steps will be taken to induce the legislature to create a bureau of this character, and which, when established, will be of inestimable value to all parts of the state. It will place California in line with the most enterprising states of the East in caring for the material interests of its citizens. The state weather service is designed, under the direction of a scientific director, to enlist volunteer observers of the weather, whose observations will amplify the work of the government service, thus making predictions more valuable. It will gather data, publish records, and inaugurate a system of disseminating predictions by signal flags on trains and at prominent points, the object being to communicate weather information as rapidly as possible to farmers and fruit growers throughout the state. The system is entirely successful in Eastern states.

INDICTED FOR PERJURY.

The U. S. grand jury, district of California, to-day indicted James W. Witham and R. J. Whiteford of San Diego for perjury in connection with the charges of fraudulently procuring a pension against Charles Curtis, alias Ferris, alias Roger Tichborne. The charge against Witham and Whiteford is that they made affidavits in San Diego, Cal., to the effect that they had known Curtis in New York in 1865, and that at that time said Curtis was minus four fingers of his right hand. It is alleged that Witham and Whiteford were not in New York in 1865, and testimony of Dr. L. C. Lane, a reputable surgeon, is produced to establish the fact that he amputated Curtis's fingers in 1867, they having been accidentally crushed while moving a house.

A FOOLHARDY BALLOON ASCENSION.

Some days ago two gentlemen laid a wager of $200 a side that one of them, named Blanchfield, dare not make a balloon ascension without an aeronaut. Blanchfield this afternoon obtained from Prof. Van Tassel his balloon "Eclipse," and in company with a reporter named W. H. Hart, entered the basket of the balloon and turned the airship loose. Nothing had been heard of them up to a late hour this afternoon. Neither of the balloonists is an aeronaut.

After rising to a hight of about a mile, the balloon sailed toward the south and descended near Mill Brae, about 4 P. M., without accident. The occupants collapsed it and returned by the train from Mill Brae to this city this evening.

SUIT AGAINST BONDSMEN.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 19.—Suit has been commenced on behalf of the state against John S. Gray, Donald McLennan, W. J. Somers, C. W. Crocker and J. F. Kennedy, for the sum of $69,000. The complaint alleges that Gray, while acting as secretary of the board of harbor commissioners, appropriated $50,000 of state moneys. Judgment is therefore asked against him and his codefendants, who were sureties on his bond, for the sum of $10,000 each.

DOLAN CHARGED WITH COLD-BLOODED MURDER.

The coroner held an inquest to-day in the case of Dr. E. Mergarten, who was killed by Wm. Dolan yesterday. Detective Hogan testified that Dolan said to him when arrested, "I shot at the ——! I shot him to kill him, and if he ain't dead I hope he will die!" Dolan was under the influence of liquor at the time. Witnesses testified that there was no knife or weapon of any kind found on deceased. The jury returned a verdict charging Dolan "with the crime of cold-blooded murder."

A ROW AT MILLS SEMINARY.

Dr. Sprague Quarrels with Mrs. Mills and Leaves the School.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 19.—Dr. Homer B. Sprague has had such a serious misunderstanding with members of the board of trustees of Mills seminary that he has resigned the presidency of the institution. He has published a little pamphlet to justify his action in resigning from what he calls "a second rate academy." He claims that the affairs of the institution were wholly misrepresented to him, and that when he arrived in California he found that the school was in reality private property instead of public. His first quarrel with Mrs. Mills was on the great feminine weakness—dress. He had notified the graduating class that elaborate toilets would not be permitted. Dr. Sprague says:

"Mrs. Mills came to me and besought me to allow the rule to be violated by two girls, saying the public would not know the difference between costly clothing and inexpensive. She had said the same thing before, and even suggested that rich material might be concealed with lace. She used on this, as on many occasions, the argument that we must yield a little to the habits and prejudice of California people, and not expect to hold them to the same high moral standard as in the Eastern states. I was amazed, and I answered with some emphasis: 'Mrs. Mills, I will not sign their diplomas as president if they are going to wear expensive dresses, and if, after I have signed them, the girls undertake to wear them, I will not permit them to read their graduating essays on the platform, nor even to sit with the rest of the class.' This was my first sharp conflict with Mrs. Mills, and from that time on I observed a growing estrangement on her part. Rev. Dr. Wythe, one of the trustees, who visited me about this time, concurred with Mrs. Mills in this remark, and when I insisted in substance that right was right and wrong was wrong, whether in California or elsewhere, he replied: 'This has always been a society school.' 'A what?' I asked. 'A society school.' 'What is a society school?' 'Why, a school to fit young ladies for fashionable society,' he answered. I rejoined that I supposed it was a Christian school. 'Well,' said he, 'we have to manage California people carefully.'"

The next quarrel was with reference to the employment of a teacher of Latin and Greek, Mrs. Mills wishing a woman, and Dr. Sprague a man. At this time the trustees threatened him with removal if he quarreled with Mrs. Mills, and he, in return, threatened that he would publish a statement which would make them feel pretty cheap if he were removed. Three days later he wrote a letter to the trustees, giving his opinion as to changes which should be made in the management of the school. The trustees, however, sustained Mrs. Mills, and after further correspondence Dr. Sprague resigned the presidency.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

DECISION IN FAVOR OF THE POSTAL TELEGRAPH COMPANY.

OLYMPIA, Nov. 19.—In the matter of the Postal Telegraph company against the Northern Pacific Railroad company and the Western Union Telegraph company, Judge Hoyt delivered an opinion to-day, in which he held that the Postal Telegraph company had the right to construct its line on the right of way of the railroad company, upon the ground of its being a military and postal road, over which congress could grant the right to construct a telegraph line, which is claimed by the Postal company. Accordingly an injunction was granted against the railway company to prevent any interference, and the temporary injunction heretofore granted in favor of the railway company was vacated. Anticipating appeal to the supreme court, the Postal Telegraph company is required to file bonds in $20,000, pending decision of that body.

The Olympia & Chehalis Valley Railroad company has filed a mortgage on its railroad property to William Alvord and James B. Laidlaw, in the sum of $200,000, for extension of the railroad and development of coal and timber lands.

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS.

SUIT TO ANNUL PATENTS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—In the matter of 151 entries made in Humboldt county, California, under the timber land act, on which patents have been issued, the secretary of the interior has advised suit to vacate said patents. This action is the result of an investigation, upon which the department holds that the entries were fraudulently made in the interest of a Scotch corporation, organized for the purpose of obtaining control of all valuable redwood timber lands in that county, and that the foreign corporation was aided in its work by a firm in California, and men employed by that firm. The secretary, in his letter to the attorney-general, characterizes the scheme by which patents were obtained as an "extensive conspiracy, culminating in a monstrous fraud."

The responses of the members indicate there will be a quorum present. Complete estimates for the sundry civil bill were received in proof yesterday and will be in shape for the committee to act upon Monday. The estimates for the fortification bill and pension bill have been received also. The legislative estimates are expected by Monday. The sundry civil bill will be taken up by the sub committee immediately upon their assembling and probably will be ready to report to the house within a day or two after congress convenes.

NO HOUSE COMMITTEE APPOINTED.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—A committee has not yet been appointed on the part of the house of representatives to attend the funeral of the late ex-President Arthur. Speaker Carlisle is expected to arrive in the city to-morrow morning, when a course of procedure will be decided upon. There has been considerable telegraphing on the subject between the speaker and Gen. Clark, clerk of the house, but without definite results. This is due to the fact that there is no precedent for the appointment of a committee on the part of the house to attend the funeral of an ex-president who dies during recess of congress.

A LITTLE BOOM FOR BLACK.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 19.—The Examiner's Washington special says: There is a movement among Illinois democrats to put Gen. Black, commissioner of pensions, on the national ticket in 1888 for vice-president. Union veterans of that state who followed the democratic flag are urging Black for the second place on the ticket. It is claimed that his brilliant services as a soldier, supplemented by his record as pension commissioner, would rally the soldier vote to his support. The proposed ticket is Cleveland and Black for president and vice-president.

RETURN OF COMMISSIONER ATKINS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Gen. Atkins, commissioner of Indian affairs, has returned to the city after a month's absence inspecting Indian agencies in the Southwest. He reports that the affairs in the several agencies are in a satisfactory condition and that the policy of the Indian office, that the Indians should abandon their tribal relations and accept land in severalty, is daily growing in favor among the tribes in that section, especially so where the pernicious influence of designing whites is least felt.

A COMMISSIONER RESIGNS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Bishop Henry B. Whipple, of Minnesota, member of the commission to negotiate with certain Indian tribes in the Northwest for the sale to the government of portions of their reservations, has resigned, and Jared R. Daniels of Minnesota, has been appointed to the vacancy.

SOUTH AMERICA.

CHOLERA AT BUENOS AYRES.

BUENOS AYRES, Nov. 19.—Cholera has broken out in the hospital for insane in this city, and of eighteen persons attacked with the disease twelve have died. There were five new cases and five deaths during the past twenty-four hours.

A PRESIDENT RESIGNS.

MONTEVIDEO, Nov. 19.—President Santos has resigned. It is thought probable that Gen. Tajes will be chosen to succeed him.

BELGIUM.

ROYAL COLLEGE BURNED.

ADMISSION OF WASHINGTON.

Walla Walla Union.

The Seattle Press in arguing for admission does not deem it necessary to hold another convention to frame a new constitution for the state of Washington. It forgets that the senate bill, now before the house, provides for holding a constitutional convention at Walla Walla, appropriates money to pay for holding it, and makes the formation and adoption of a new constitution for the state of Washington an absolute necessity. Then, too, the suggestion of the Press to use the old constitution will not do, because that document does not fit the present state of affairs. For instance, it provides for only three judicial districts, and the district judges form the supreme court. It also provides that Walla Walla shall have four members of the house, King three, Whitman two, Stevens one. The last two counties then included within their boundaries the populous counties of Spokane, Adams, Franklin, Lincoln and Douglas.

If Washington is admitted before the next presidential election it must be by the passage by the house during the next session of the present congress, of the bill for an enabling act which passed the senate last spring. If it passes the house as it left the senate all will be well. If it is amended in the slightest degree in the house it must go back to the senate, where it will die. If Voorhees is in earnest about admission, and wants to join his father in the senate, he must see to it that the senate bill goes through the house, without amendment, before the 4th of March, 1887. Will he do it? We hope he will, but fear he will not try. He probably thinks a certainty of two years more as delegate is better than running the chances of being elected a senator from the state of Washington.

ST. JACOBS OIL

FOR RHEUMATISM.

MIRACLES OF CURE.

Suffered 40 Years and Cured.

N. Albany St., Ithaca, N. Y.

For over forty years I have been a victim of Rheumatism. I was persuaded to try St. Jacobs Oil. I have used two bottles and a man more free from rheumatism never walked our streets. My limbs that once were stiff and lame, are now as light and limber as in my youth.

JOS. KDSELL.

Suffered 30 Years and Cured.

Bangor, Maine.

Mr. Frank Durgen, who works at Maddon's Harness Shop, 127 Exchange Street, said: "My father, who lives at 46 York Street, has suffered with rheumatism and erysipelas in his feet every winter but this, for the past thirty years. He has employed the best physicians and tried all the known remedies for such diseases but received no benefit until last winter, at which time his feet and the lower part of his legs were swollen to four times their natural size. He applied St. Jacobs Oil to the afflicted parts and was completely cured.

Suffered 18 Years and Cured.

The Louisville (Kentucky) Courier Journal says: Prof. C. A. Donaldson, who was severely wounded at the battle of Gettysburg has been an almost constant sufferer and cripple with rheumatism for over eighteen years. He states that he spent $10,000 in trying to get rid of his pain. He tried doctors, famous baths, electric appliances, and all kind of liniments, without relief. Finally, he tried St. Jacobs Oil, which he says has completely cured him.

Spent $20,000 in Vain.

Col. D. J. Williamson, an Army Officer and Ex-U. S. Consul, San Francisco, Cal., states that after long years of intense suffering from acute rheumatism, and after using all other known remedies, the baths of other countries, and spending twenty thousand dollars without relief, he was cured by St. Jacobs Oil, and has thrown away his crutches, after having been a helpless cripple for years.

WATCHES.

How Pocket Time-pieces are Made Waltham.

Earliest Known Methods of Telling Time—M the Mechanism of Modern Invention—A De scription of a Great Factory.

[Written for The Sunday Oregonian.]

'Tis with our judgments as our watches—
Go just alike, yet each believes his own."

Clocks precede watches in the order of invention, but the date of the first appear of either is obscure. It would seem th earliest ages men measured years by the m ment of the sun among the constellati measured months by the motion of the m relatively to the sun's place in the heav measured day and night by the rising an ting of the sun; but the division of days hours, minutes and seconds was unknown. earliest recorded time-piece was the simp It was nothing more than an upright rod, length and direction of its shadows cast b sun indicating the time. This naturally gested the sun-dial, which is a time-piec great antiquity, as is also the clepsydra water clock, used in the time of and by P four centuries before the Christian era. contrivance determined the hours by the discharge of water through an aperture graduated tube. Somewhere about this ti was discovered that sand insured correct more than water, and the hour glass was result. King Alfred is said to have reco the passing hours by noting the gradual sh ening of a lighted candle. Numerous dev were afterward invented to note the laps time, but the first clock of which history g a complete description was erected in 137 the tower of Charles V., king of France. this was a crude instrument. The propertie the pendulum as a regulating power were known; did not become fully known until were discussed by Galileo, in a work publis in 1639. It was several years, however, be a practical use of the pendulum was effec the honor being ascribed to Huggens, a G man. Many and essential improvements w required to make clocks what we find them day.

THE FIRST WATCHES.

The word watch is derived from an An Saxon word meaning "to wake." By a authorities it is stated that watches were f made at Geneva, Switzerland, while a gre number state that their first appearance wa Nuremberg, or Nurnberg, a city of Bavaria, They were humorously styled "Nur animated eggs," as many of them w constructed in the shape of eggs or pears. even the Chinese are credited with having m first watches. But wherever their origi certain that their invention is comparativ recent date; is almost coincident with the of America.

In the time of Queen Elizabeth a popular st for watches was one in the shape of a dove, chain being attached to a ring in the back of dove's neck. Mary, Queen of Scotts, presen her maid of honor with a watch in the shap a human skull. It was opened by pressi up the lower jaw. The dial was to be fou in the place for the palate, the works in cavity for the brains. About this period, middle of the 16th century, watches seem have been in quite general use. Shakespe who flourished at this time, often menti them in his dramas. As time sped on t gradually became better and cheaper. The world invented the watch, the new world re volutionized it. The former made it by hand; the latter makes it by machinery. As has be written by a high authority, "The perfect American watch, in its simplicity, accura permanency and cheapness, represents the hig est stage in the watchmaker's art."

It is distinctively an American idea that watch can be made by machinery. Even to-d in Switzerland, England and France it is that only one-fifth part is made by machine while in this country the proportion is fo fifths. The application of machinery to this dustry is said to have originated with a Bost watchmaker about 1850. A factory was f started at Roxbury, Mass., but the dust that r from the roadsides in that neighborhood int fered with the making and testing of the fi pieces of mechanism, and in 1854 the factu was

REMOVED TO WALTHAM,

Where, planted as a germ, it has raised the i pressive structure visible to-day. In 1858 passed out of the hands of the original own into those of men who for the most part are t present owners.

Not many weeks ago it was my pleasure to shown through the factory of the Americ Watch company at Waltham, a village of 18,0 inhabitants, situated ten miles north-by-we from Boston, and one commercially noted being the site of the first cotton mill in Amer I was told by the superintendent that o of this company all others have originate directly. Those at Elgin, Rockford, Aurora an Springfield, Ill., Columbus, Ohio, Springfiel Mass., Marion, N. J., Lancaster, Penn., and others, small or great. Be this as it may, du ing its three and a half decades of life this fa tory has grown to be the largest in America the largest in the world.

Let us look for a moment at the building. is of brick, from three to four stories high, an has a front length of over 700 feet, being withi a few feet of the length of the capitol buildin at Washington. Running back from the fron are near a half dozen long wings, which, bein occasionally joined by transverse sections, form several courts. At one end of the front are th general offices, at the other end is an observa tory, while from different points rise towers an chimneys that, from a distance, look for all th world like a cluster of lighthouses set upon weather-scarred cliff. The present structure comparatively new, being built in 1878, and wa so planned as to afford the maximum of ventila tion and light. The floors cover nearly fiv acres, the total length of the different benche nearly four miles, and of the belting used i the machinery nearly eight miles, all of whic is driven by a Corliss engine of 125-horse powe Surrounding the building are parks, lawns an fountains, all maintained at the company's ex pense, while at the rear flows the river Charle the river so beloved by Longfellow, and com paratively on one bank of which his house i Cambridge stands.

INTERIOR OF THE FACTORY.

But the exterior of the factory is as nothing t the interior. Without, quiet reigns. Within is either heard or seen the musical hum of thou sands of automatic machines, the footsteps an whispers of hundreds upon hundreds of skille workmen; the clink of metal; the luster o jewels; conical piles or jars full of minut screws, hair springs, mainsprings, wheels, pin ions, minute and hour hands, dials, cases, etc From ten to twenty different styles of watche are here made, designated by shape and size These are subdivided into between 150 and 20 varieties, designated by differences of finish, by the number of jewels, the construction of ba ances, escapements and other parts.

The different parts of a watch are manufac tured in different parts of the building. Suppos an order has been received for 10,000 watches o a certain design. In the plate department the machinery is set in motion, and 10,000 sets o plates are turned out. The same thing is don at the screw, the escapement, the balance, th dial, the case and other departments. All piece are tending to a common center and for a com mon purpose, but for the most part they are un known by one another until they meet in the fit ting rooms. The aim of the company is to secure interchangeability of parts so that any one part will fit any one place of any watch. This may seem to be an ideal aim, but any one who will think for a moment will realize that it can be more nearly secured by machinery than by hand, unless much time is spent in the making. As a fact the larger pieces are inter changeable. It is mostly those that are almost microscopic that require to be fitted by hand.

Let us now refresh our memories as to the elements of a Waltham watch. The motive power or engine that drives all the works is the mainspring, a coiled ribbon of steel. This is placed in a hollow cylinder called the going bar-
